SOUTHERN ECONOMIC HISTORY PROJECT

Working Paper Number 5, Appendix A

FOOTNOTES TO THE SAMPLE OF SOUTHERN FARMS*

by

Roger Ransom -- University of California, Riverside, California

Richard Sutch -- University of California, Berkeley, California

April 1971

Note: Reference to this paper in works intended for publication should be cleared with the authors.

* The footnotes to the sample were prepared by Sheila Moffett, Wendy Barnes, Lynnae Wolin, Deborah Doyle, Barbara Robins, and Sue Boutin. Thanks are also due Arden Hall for handling the computer work. The Southern Economic History Project is financed through grants from the National Science Foundation. Additional support was provided by the Computer Center at the University of California, Berkeley.

Footnotes to the 1880 Sample

For each farm in the sample which has a footnote there is a code on the computer tape. See Working Paper No. 2* for details of the format. The accompanying list gives the text of these footnotes by farm number. In addition, notes which apply to an entire enumeration district or to an entire county are also listed in the appropriate sequential order.

There are several conventions used in the footnotes which should be noted here:

1) In most cases the Agricultural Schedule for Southern states was used in the geographical area of our sample. This schedule differed from the Northern Schedule by including inquiries on rice, cotton, and sugar cane, and omitting inquiries on broom corn and hops. The Southern Schedule also separately reported the weeks of hired labor for White and Colored farm laborers. The Northern Schedule did not ask for the distinction.

* Richard Sutch, Roger Ransom and George Boutin, "A Sample of Southern Farms in 1880: Sampling Procedure", Southern Economic History Project, Working Paper No. 2 (Berkeley Institute of Business and Economic Research, University of California, September, 1969).

A few areas in the South were inadvertently supplied with Northern rather than Southern Schedules. Therefore no distinction as to the race of hired labor could be made. The weeks reported in these cases were recorded as White and a special wage data quality code was assigned (see Working Paper No. 2). Wherever the Northern Schedule was used, a footnote records the fact.

2) The coding form used for collecting the sample had blanks for cotton, corn, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, and four additional crops. If a farm cultivated more than four additional crops, the data for the extra crops were recorded in a footnote. The footnote gives the crop identification number (see Working Paper No. 2), the acres devoted to the crop, and the volume of production in the units presented in Table 2 of Working Paper No. 2. If either the acreage or output was left blank on the manuscript schedules an "X" was placed in the sequence.

Examples:

888 Additional crops: 81-7-50; 74-3-60.

888 Additional crop: 81-X-2.

3) Whenever the farm operator reported an occupation which was not related to agriculture, a footnote recorded the fact. In these cases the operator was not included in the number at work. If the farm operator had an occupation in addition to farming, both the farming occupation and the non-farming occupation were noted in the footnote and the operator was included in the number at work.

4) When a farm operator and his family lived on a farm other than their own, they were counted among the residents of the farm where they resided. The number at home for their farm was recorded as zero. Each farmer and his farm laboring family members were however counted in the number at work on their separate farms. Such farms have been paired with appropriate footnotes.

Examples:

888 Operator of farm 889 lived on this farm.

889 Operator lived on farm 888.

It should be noted that no attempt was made to insure that all such pairs were identified. Therefore the best practice would be to treat the two farms as distinct for all analyses which do not involve the labor force or resident population as variables, but to exclude such farms wherever these variables play an important role. Table I includes a list of all such farms. The footnote code "2" was used for all farms in Table I.

5) When one man operated two or more farms, the personal data (age, race, literacy, etc.) of the operator was coded for each farm the man operated. One of the farms was chosen as the residence. This was often the largest farm or the first farm on the schedule. The number at home was reported for this farm. The number at home on the other farms was recorded as zero. The number at work was distributed to all the farms in proportion to farm size. Each such farm was footnoted with the code "3". Table II presents a list of multiple farms within the sample. The first farm given is the one chosen as the residence farm. It should be noted that no attempt was made to insure that all such multiple farms were identified.

6) When a farm was operated in a partnership, the personal data (age, race, literacy, birthplace) was recorded for one of the partners. The number at home and the number at work aggregated the data from both partners' households. The footnote records the personal data of the second partner.

7) Whenever the original sampling frame included a farm which had less than 3 acres of tilled land and less than $500 of output or was illegible, it was replaced with a satisfactory alternate. The footnote records the location of the originally selected farm. All farms which replaced originally selected farms are listed by farm number in Table III.

GRANT, LOUISIANA [farms 4846-4905]

Enumeration District 26 [farms 4846 to 4885]: The enumerator of this district reversed the standard procedure for indicating literacy. "Cannot read" and "Cannot write" were interpreted to mean "Can read" and "Can write". In addition, the literacy columns were not marked on pages 15 through 19 (farms 4866-4870). This interpretation was used in coding the literacy variable.

4883 Operator was a physician.

Enumeration District 27 [farms 4886 to 4905]: The enumerator of this district marked literate people with a slash (/) and illiterate people with a backward slash (\). This interpretation was used in coding the literacy variable.

4886 Operator of farm 4887 lived on this farm.

4887 Operator lived on farm 4886.

IBERVILLE, LOUISIANA [farms 4906-4957]

Enumeration District 63 [farms 4906 to 4914]: The enumerator did not distinguish households or dwellings. Therefore, the number at home was determined by last name and relationship.

4907 Operator was a storekeeper.

4912 Operator was a storekeeper.

4919 Operator was a civil engineer.

4929 Operator was a blacksmith and a carpenter.

4936 Operator also operated three farms not sampled.

4939 Operator was a grocer.

4952 The value of the farm and the value of the farm implements were incorrectly recorded under "other unimproved acres" and value of farm respectively. The error was corrected for the tape.

4953 Operator was a beekeeper.

4956 The farm was operated by a partnership. Neither partner could be located on the Population Schedule. The partnership also operated three other farms which were not sampled.

PLAQUEMINES, LOUISIANA [farms 4958-4979]

Because of the small size of this county and the peculiar arrangement of farms in several enumeration districts, Plaquemines was sampled by taking every thirteenth farm beginning with the eighth farm.

Enumeration District 140 [farms 4960-4967]: This enumerator used the Northern Agricultural Schedule.

4962 Operator was a constable.

4966 Operator was a merchant.

Enumeration District 141 [farms 4968-4970]: Most of the farms in this district had an additional crop of oranges.

4969 Operator was a gardener.

Enumeration District 142 [farm 4971]: The farm in this district had an additional crop of oranges.

4972 The original farm selected was replaced since it was not an "official" farm. The original choice was on page 2, line 2 of the Agricultural Schedule.

Enumeration District 144 [farm 4973]: This enumerator did not distinguish either households or dwellings. Therefore, the number at home was determined by last name and relationship.

Enumeration District 145 [farms 4974-4975]: In this district the enumerator apparently did not count rice or orange groves under tilled acres. The total acreage figures are therefore suspect. Most of the farms in this district had an additional crop of oranges.

4974 Operator was an engineer.

Enumeration district 146 [farms 4976-4979]: Most of the farms in this district had an additional crop of oranges
